

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

PREFACE.

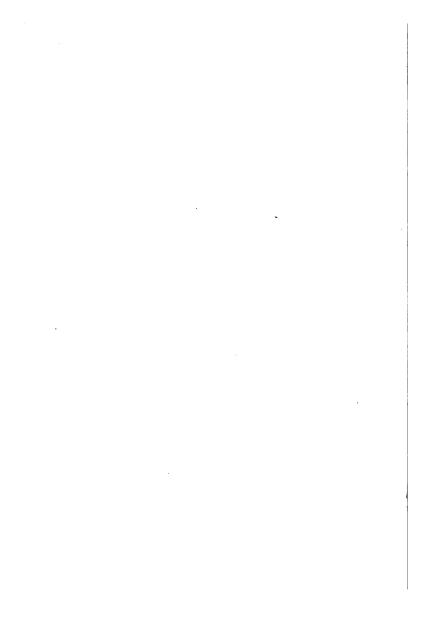

In re-editing Welch and Duffield's Caesar (Helvetian War), El. Cl., I have made the following changes and additions: I have altered the orthography so as to bring it into more complete conformity with Brambach's Hülfsbüchlein für lateinische Rechtschreibung (dritte Auflage, Leipzig, 1884), and Dr. Charlton T. Lewis' Elementary Latin Dictionary (Harper and Brothers, 1891). I have rewritten and enlarged the body of notes in the light of such valuable aids as the editions of Kraner and Dittenberger, Bond and Walpole, Allen and Greenough, Harper and Tolman, and Moberley; and have added references to the Latin grammars of Allen and Greenough, of Harkness, and of Gildersleeve, designated by the initials, A., H., and G. In making these references I have kept constantly in view the uses and difficulties of the subjunctive, which, if not taken in hand at an early day, invariably prove a stumblingblock to the student throughout his school and college course. I have used on all occasions the nomenclature of Allen and Greenough. It has seemed to me best also to make a number of changes in the vocabularies, and to indicate the vowels there which are long by nature, leaving the short vowels and those of doubtful quantity unmarked. I have endeavoured to correct any accidental errors or misprints in the English edition.

INTRODUCTION.

ABOUT B.C. 100 began a series of movements. among the German tribes east of the Rhine threatening danger alike to the Gallic tribes in the west and even to the great empire of the Romans in the south. Two of these German tribes in B.c. 102 had poured innumerable hordes across the Rhine in search of new homes. Marius had rolled back the tide of invasion from Italian soil by his victory over the Teutons at Aquae, and over the Cimbri at Vercellae, where he saved Rome from a ferocious horde which had defeated seven armies. The danger arising from these southern invasions had never really ceased. The mutual jealousy of the Gallic tribes weakened the barrier on the west: moreover, one of these tribes, the Sequani, had actually invited Ariovistus, king of some of the Suevic tribes, from the east side of the Rhine, to take up his quarters amongst them. This step they had bitter cause to regret, for when he demanded a third of their lands, and they resisted, he made a terrible slaughter of them at Magetobriga. With the foresight of a great statesman, Caesar saw that nothing but the reduction of the Gallic tribes to Roman dominion would be a barrier to these incursions on the west, and so he had himself appointed governor of Cisalpine Gaul, Illyricum, and the Province. He received by a vote of the tribes the government, first, for five years (59–54 B.C.), and afterwards for five years more.

A rumour at this time reached Rome that the Helvetii, a tribe akin to the Gauls, were contemplating an emigration westward into the country of the Santoni, who dwelt on the western shore of Gaul. On them, too, the tide of migration from the north had pressed heavily; they had, however, bravely held their own. But they were growing weary of the constant struggle, and determined at last to seek more easy quarters: moreover, their population was increasing and their narrow valleys were growing too strait for them. It was difficult to widen their borders: the Jura Mountains on the west, the Rhine on the north, snow-clad mountains on the east and south formed natural boundaries There was no escape but which hemmed them in. by universal emigration. Orgetorix, who had originated the idea, was chosen to superintend the preparations, which were conducted upon a gigantic scale. At last in B.c. 58 they were ready to move. Two outlets alone were practicable. One of these, over the Jura Mountains, through the Sequani, was so arduous that they were compelled to abandon it; and they determined to try the other, by the Lake of Geneva and over the Thine, through the territory of the Allobroges. The vast procession numbered 368,000 persons, of whom 92,000 men were capable of bearing arms. In April, Caesar hurried from Rome to interrupt them and cut down the bridge at Geneva. A formal request was sent him by the Helvetii for permission to pass through the Province, and the ambassadors were requested to return on the 13th April. By this time Caesar had been enabled to fortify the south bank of the Rhone, and he refused to give way. The Helvetii attempted to force their way across, but were baffled, and they had to seek an entrance into Gaul through the Sequani. Terrified at their approach, the Aedui appealed to Caesar for help; he meanwhile had been raising fresh levies of troops in North Italy, and with these he hurried over the Mont Genèvre, and caught up the Helvetii as they were in the act of crossing the Arar. The part which had not yet crossed the river he cut to pieces; in so doing he was wiping off an old score, for they turned out to be the canton Tigurinus, which had fifty years before severely defeated the Romans under L. Cassius Longinus. A truce was called, and terms discussed; but the demands of the Helvetii were so arrogant that Caesar refused to entertain further proposals. They continued their march, and Caesar hung upon their rear for fifteen days. An opportunity presented itself at last of attacking them in front and in rear, but it was lost through the incapacity of one of his officers, Considius. Caesar then made a feint of flight. The Helvetii pursued him to a spot 18 miles west of Bibracte, where he took them at a disadvantage and utterly routed them. The survivors were sent back home, and Caesar turned his arms against the German, Ariovistus.

DIRECTIONS FOR TRANSLATING.1

- 1. Pick out the finite verb (the predicate) and find out its voice, mood, tense, number, and person.
- 2. Find the subject or subjects with which it agrees. Translate.
- 3. If the verb is incomplete, find the object or completion. Translate.
- 4. See if the subject is enlarged by any of the methods mentioned below; if it is, translate, taking the enlargements with the subject.
- 5. See if the object is enlarged; if it is, translate, taking the enlargements with the object.
 - 6. Take the extensions of the predicate. Translate.
- 7. Translate finally, putting in the introductory conjunctions or other words not yet taken.

The subject may be

- 1. A noun.
- 2. A pronoun (perhaps understood in the verb).
- 3. An adjective.
- 4. An infinitive mood.
- 5. A phrase.

The subject may be enlarged by

- An adjective or participle.
- 2. A noun in apposition.
- 3. A noun in the genitive case.
- A relative clause.
- A participial phrase.
- ¹ To those who are inclined to follow implicitly these directions of the English editors, a perusal of Prof. W. G. Hale's "Art of Reading Latin" is recommended.

The object or completion may consist of a phrase, or of any of the parts of speech which can form a subject.

The object may be enlarged in the same way as the subject.

The predicate may be extended by

- 1. Adverb.
- 2. Ablative case.
- 3. Preposition and its case.
- 4. Adverbial sentence.

RULES OF AGREEMENT.

- 1. The verb agrees with its subject in number and person (and gender in the compound tenses).
- 2. The adjective agrees with its substantive in gender, number, and case.
- 3. The relative agrees with its antecedent in gender and number; for case it looks to its own verb.

PARSING.

- 1. Verb. Person, number, tense, mood, and voice, from _____ (give the parts). Agrees with _____, its subject.
- 2. Noun. Case, number, and gender, from ———, of the declension. Give the reason for the case.
- 3. Adjective. Case, number, and gender, from ———, and is declined like ———. It agrees with its substantive ————. Give the comparative and superlative.
- 4. Relative. Case, number, and gender, from ———. It agrees with its antecedent ———. Give the reason for the case.

Civitati persuasit, ut de finibus suis cum omnibus copiis exirent:

totius enim Galliae imperium occupare cupivit.

Id facillime eis persuasit.

40 6. Helvetii enim undique loci natura continentur:

una ex parte flumen Rhenus altissimus et latissimus est:

alterâ ex parte est Mons Iura altissimus: tertiâ ex parte lacus Lemannus et flumen Rhoda-45 nus nostram provinciam ab Helvetiis dividit.

7. His de causis Helvetii non late vagari potuerunt:

nec facile finitimis bellum inferre potuerunt:

itaque homines, natura bellicosi, magno dolore 50 adficiebantur.

Pro multitudine hominum et pro glorià belli fines Helvetiorum angusti esse videbantur.

Hi autem fines in longitudinem milia passuum ducenta et quadraginta, in latitudinem centum et 55 octoginta patebant.

8. His rebus et auctoritate Orgetorigis adducti sunt:

et ea, quae ad proficiscendum pertinent, comparare constituerunt:

The Helvetti prepare to emiprepare to emigrate.

Orgetorix sibi legationem ad civitates suscepit.

Plot of Orgetorix discovered. 70

In Sequanis erat Casticus, Catamantaloedis filius:

pater eius regnum in Sequanis multos annos obtinuerat:

a senatu populi Romani amicus appellatus erat:

ei persuadet, ut regnum in civitate suâ occupet. . 75

Dumnorigi etiam Aeduo, fratri Divitiaci, qui eo tempore principatum obtinebat, idem persuadet: eique filiam suam in matrimonium dat.

10. Inter se fidem et ius iurandum dant:

per tres potentissimos et firmissimos populos totius Galliae sese potiri posse sperant.

Ea res Helvetiis per indicium enuntiata est.

Moribus suis Orgetorigem ex vinclis causam dicere coegerunt:

ei, si damnaretur, mortem minabantur. 85

Dies dicendae causae constituta est:

Orgetorix ad iudicium omnem suam familiam undique coegit :

et omnes clientes obaeratosque suos eodem conoo duxit:

et per eos se eripuit.

11. Civitas, ob eam rem incitata, ius Death of Orgetsuum armis exsequi conabatur:

et magistratus multos homines ex agris cogebant: sed Orgetorix mortuus est, et Helvetii arbitrantur eum ipsum sibi mortem conscivisse.

Post mortem eius Helvetii e finibus suis exire parant.

Primum oppida sua omnia, vicosque, et reliqua 100 privata aedificia incendunt:

frumentum omne, praeterquam quod secum portaturi erant, comburunt:

itaque spes domum reditionis sublata est:

et omnes ad pericula subeunda paratiores erant. 105

12. Raurici autem et Tulingi et Latovici, finitimi eorum, eodem consilio usi sunt:

Other tribes join oppida sua vicosque exurunt, et unà the Helvetii.

cum iis proficiscuntur:

et Boios ad se socios adsciscunt.

Erant omnino itinera duo, quibus itineribus domo exire poterant:

unum per Sequanos, angustum et difficile, inter montem Iuram et flumen Rhodanum;

mons autem altissimus impendebat, et facile per-115 pauci prohibere poterant:

alterum per provinciam nostram erat multo facilius atque expeditius:

nam inter fines Helvetiorum et Allobrogum Rhodanus fluit: 120 isque nonnullis locis vado transitur.

Extremum oppidum Allobrogum est Genava: ex eo oppido pons ad Helvetios pertinet.

14. De eius adventu Helvetii certiores fiunt:

Ambassadors et legatos ad eum nobilissimos civiare sent to him. tatis mittunt:

dicebant se velle voluntate eius sine ullo maleficio iter per provinciam facere:

Caesar memoriâ tenet L. Cassium consulem 145 occisum esse, eius exercitumque ab Helvetiis pulsum, et sub iugum missum esse:

itaque concedendum esse non putabat:

si facultas per provinciam itineris faciendi daretur, non existimabat homines inimico animo tem-150 peraturos esse ab iniuria et maleficio.

Legatis respondit, se diem ad deliberandum sumpturum esse:

milites enim, quos imperaverat, nondum convenerant:

- 155 legatos ad Idus Apriles reverti iubet.
 - 15. Interea a lacu Lemanno, qui in flumen Rho-

Tandem ea dies, quam cum legatis constituerat, venit, et legati ad eum revertunt : 165 si vim facere conarentur, se prohibiturum ostendit.

Helvetii ea spe deiecti sunt:

alii naves iungunt ratesque complures faciunt: alii, nonnumquam interdiu, saepius noctu, vadis Rhodani perrumpere conati sunt:

hîc enim minima altitudo fluminis erat:

sed operis munitione et militum concursu et telis repulsi sunt: 175 itaque hoc conatu destiterunt.

16. Relinquebatur una per Seguanos via:

sed primò Sequani iter dare nole- The Sequani allow them to bant:

neque illis sua sponte persuadere poterant: 180 deinde autem legatos ad Dumnorigem Aeduum mittunt, ut ille deprecator sit.

Dumnorix gratia et largitione apud Sequanos plurimum poterat:

185 et Helvetiis erat amicus:

nam ex eâ civitate filiam Orgetorigis in matrimonium duxerat:

et adductus cupiditate regni novis rebus studebat:

190 civitatibus quam plurimis amicus esse volebat.

Eo deprecatore, Sequani Helvetios per suos fines ire patiuntur:

dantque inter se obsides:

Sequani, ne itinere Helvetios prohibeant:

195 Helvetii, ut sine maleficio et iniuriâ transeant.

17. Caesari renuntiatum est Helvetios velle per agrum Sequanorum et Aeduorum iter in Santonum fines facere:

ii non longe a Tolosatium finibus absunt: ea 200 civitas est in provinciâ.

Intellegebat, si homines bellicosi, populi Romani inimici, loca patentia, maximeque frumentaria, haberent, id provinciae periculosum fore.

Ob eas causas ei munitioni, quam fecerat, T. La-205 bienum legatum praefecit:

ipse in Italiam magnis itineribus contendit:

duasque ibi legiones conscribit:

tres autem legiones circum Aquileiam hiemabant:

210 eas ex hibernis educit:

cum his quinque legionibus in ulteriorem Galliam per Alpes ire contendit.

18. Ibi Ceutrones et Graioceli et Caturiges loca superiora occupaverant, ii itinere Caesarem prohibere conantur:

215

hos compluribus proeliis reppulit.

Ab Ocelo in fines Vocontiorum die septimo pervenit:

inde in Allobrogum fines, ab Allobrogibus in Segusiavos exercitum ducit.

Hi sunt extra provinciam trans Rhodanum primi. Helvetii iam per angustias et fines Sequanorum suas copias traduxerant: in Aeduorum fines pervenerant:

eorumque agros populabantur.

225

Aedui autem se suaque defendere non poterant: itaque legatos ad Caesarem mittunt. The Aedui ask

19. Dicebant se omni tempore bene Caesar for help. de populo Romano meritos esse:

neque suos agros paene in conspectu Romani 230 exercitûs vastari debere:

nec liberos in servitutem adduci, neque oppida expugnari debere.

Eodem tempore quaedam gens Aeduorum, nomine Ambarri, Caesarem certiorem faciunt suos agros ab 235 Helvetiis vastatos esse:

nec se ab oppidis vim hostium prohibere posse.

Item Allobroges, qui trans Rhodanum vicos possessionesque habebant, fugă se ad Caesarem recipiunt.

Demonstrant se habere nihil reliqui praeter agri solum.

Itaque Caesar non exspectandum sibi statuit, dum Helvetii in Santonos pervenirent: nam omnes for-245 tunae sociorum consumebantur.

20. Flumen est Arar, quod per fines Aeduorum

Caesarovertakes et Sequanorum in Rhodanum influit:
the Helvetii at the Arar and defeats them.

ob incredibilem lenitatem, in utram partem fluat non oculis iudicari potest.

250 Id Helvetii ratibus ac lintribus iunctis transibant.

Caesar per exploratores certior factus est tres iam partes copiarum id flumen transisse: quartam fere partem citra flumen Ararim reliquam esse: 255 itaque de tertià vigilià cum legionibus tribus e castris profectus est:

ad eam partem pervenit, quae nondum flumen transierat.

Eos impeditos et inopinantes aggressus, magnam 260 partem eorum concidit: reliqui sese fugae mandârunt, atque in proximas silvas abdiderunt.

21. Is pagus appellabatur Tigurinus:

nam omnis Helvetia in quattuor pagos divisa est. Hic pagus unus memoriâ patrum nostrorum domo 265 exierat:

L. Cassium consulem interfecerat, et eius exercitum sub iugum miserat.

Hic pagus insignem calamitatem populo Romano intulerat: itaque nunc, sive casu sive consilio deorum immortalium, is princeps poenas persolvit. .270

Qua in re Caesar non solum publicas sed etiam privatas iniurias ultus est:

nam in eodem proelio eius soceri L. Pisonis avus, L. Piso interfectus erat.

Post hoc proelium pontem in Arare facit et exer-275 citum traducit:

hoc modo reliquas copias Helvetiorum facilius consequi poterat.

22. Helvetii repentino eius adventu commoti sunt:

Caesar enim id uno die fecerat, quod ii viginti diebus aegerrime confecerant, ut flumen transirent.

Legatos ad eum mittunt; cuius legationis Divico princeps fuit, qui bello Cassiano dux Helvetiorum 285 fuerat.

Is ita cum Caesare egit:

Si populus Romanus nobiscum pacem facere volet, nos in eam partem ibimus, ubi nos constitueris:

sin bello persequi perseveres, ne oblitus sis pristinae virtutis Helvetiorum. Unum pagum vieisti, ne ob eam rem Helvetios despexeris. Magis enim virtute quam dolo aut insidiis niti solemus.

23. His Caesar respondit, 'Non possum recen-295 tium iniuriarum memoriam deponere. Me invito, iter per provinciam per vim temptavistis. Aeduos et Ambarros et Allobrogas vexavistis. Cum ea ita sint, tamen si obsides dare vultis, si Aeduis et Alloso brogibus satisfacere parati estis, vobiscum pacem faciam.'

Tum Divico 'Ita' inquit 'a maioribus instituti sumus ut obsides accipere non dare consueverimus: eius rei populus Romanus testis est.'

- 305 Hoc responso dato, discessit. Postero die castra ex eo loco movent. Idem facit Caesar: equitatum omnem praemittit: vident quas in partes hostes iter faciant. Sed cupidius novissimum hostium agmen insecuti sunt: alieno loco cum equitatu 310 Helvetiorum proelium committunt: et pauci de nostris cadunt.
 - 24. Hoc proelio Helvetiorum animi sublati sunt:

audacius subsistere, et nostros novissimo agmine 315 proelio lacessere coeperunt.

Caesar autem suos a proelio continebat:

et vix hostem rapinis et pabulationibus et populationibus prohibere poterat,

Ita dies circiter quindecim iter fecerunt:

- et inter novissimum agmen hostium et nostrum primum non amplius quinis aut senis milibus passuum intererat.
 - 25. Interim cottidie Caesar Aeduos frumentum, quod essent publice polliciti, flagitabat:

nam propter frigora frumenta in agris matura 325 non erant:

nec pabuli satis magna copia suppetebat:

Dumnorix prevents the Aedui from sending corn to Caesar.

eo autem frumento, quod flumine Arare navibus subvexerat, uti non poterat:

iter enim ab Arare Helvetii averterant, a quibus discedere nolebat.

Diem ex die ducunt Aedui:

dicunt frumentum conferri, comportari, adesse.

26. Caesar se diutius duci intellegit:

Conference be- 335 tween Caesar and Divitiacus dies enim iam instabat, quo die frumentum militibus metiri oportebat:

itaque Aeduorum principes convocat:

ex his Divitiacum et Liscum, qui summo magis-340 tratui praeerat, graviter accusat, quòd tam necessario tempore, tam propinquis hostibus, ab iis non sublevetur; multo etiam gravius queritur, quòd sit destitutus, cum magnâ ex parte eorum precibus adductus bellum susceperit.

27. Tum demum Liscus oratione Caesaris adductus, 'Sunt' inquit, 'nonnulli, quorum auctoritas apud plebem plurimum valet:

ii privatim plus possunt quam ipsi magistratus.

obtinere non possimus, Gallorum quam Romanorum imperia perferre:

Hi vestra consilia, et ea, quae in castris geruntur, hostibus enuntiant: neque eos coercere pos-360 sumus.

Intellego quanto cum periculo haec tibi enuntiem, et ob eam causam, quam diu potui, tacui.'

28. Hac oratione Lisci Dumnorix, Divitiaci frater, designabatur: Caesar autem, pluribus prae-365 sentibus, eas res iactari nolebat: celeriter concilium dimittit, Liscum retinet.

Quaerit ex solo ea, quae in conventu dixerat.

Dicit liberius atque audacius.

Eadem secretò ab aliis quaerit: repperit esse 370 vera.

ex eo audit Dumnorigem esse summâ audaciâ hominem:

illum propter liberalitatem magna apud plebem gratia esse:

375 novarum rerum cupidum esse.

Complures annos portoria reliquaque omnia Aeduorum vectigalia parvo pretio redemerat.

nam, illo licente, nemo contra liceri ausus est.

29. His rebus suam rem familiarem auxerat:

380 et facultates ad largiendum magnas comparaverat:

magnum numerum equitatûs suo sumptu semperalit, et circum se habet:

non solum domi, sed etiam apud finitimas civitates largiter poterat:

huius potentiae causa matrem in Biturigibus 385 homini illic nobilissimo ac potentissimo conlocaverat:

et ipse ex Helvetiis uxorem duxerat:

sororem et propinquas suas aliarum civitatum principibus in matrimonium dederat.

Favet Helvetiis propter eam adfinitatem:

odit etiam suo nomine Caesarem et Romanos:

eorum enim adventu potentia eius deminuta erat, et Divitiaeus frater in antiquum locum gratiae atque honoris restitutus erat.

30. Sperat se, si quid accidat Romanis, regnum per Helvetios obtinere posse: imperio populi Romani non modo de regno, sed etiam de eâ, quam habet, gratiâ, desperat.

Reperiebat etiam in quaerendo Caesar, cum paucis 400 ante diebus equites adversum proelium Caesar resolves to punish Dumgessissent, Dumnorigem atque eius norix. equites initium illius fugae fecisse: nam equitatui, quem auxilio Caesari Aedui miserant, Dumnorix praeerat: eorum fugâ reliquum esse equitatum per-405 territum.

Quibus rebus cognitis, certissimae res ad has suspiciones accedebant. Dumnorix enim per fines Sequanorum Helvetios traduxerat: obsides inter 410 eos dandos curaverat: ea omnia nec Caesar iusserat, neque Aedui ipsi cognoverant: a magistratu Aeduorum accusatus erat. Quas ob res Caesar satis causae esse arbitrabatur, quare in eum aut ipse animadverteret, aut civitatem animadvertere 415 iuberet.

31. His omnibus rebus unum repugnabat:

Caesar Divitiaci fratris summum in populum Romanum studium, summam in se voluntatem, egregiam fidem, iustitiam, temperantiam, cognoverat:

420 et verebatur, ne eius supplicio Divitiaci animum offenderet.

Itaque primò Divitiacum ad se vocat: cottidianos

But first lays interpretes removet: per C. Valerium the matter before Divitiacus, Procillum, principem Galliae provinciae, familiarem suum, cui summam omnium rerum fidem habebat, cum eo conloquitur.

Simul docet, quae in concilio Gallorum de Dumnorige dicta sint; ostendit quae separatim quisque de eo apud se dixerit. Petit atque hortatur, ut sine 430 eius offensione animi vel ipse de eo, causâ cognitâ, statuat, vel civitatem statuere iubeat.

32. Divitiacus multis cum lacrimis Caesarem obsecrat, ne quid gravius in fratrem statuat. Dicit se scire illa esse vera, nec quemquam ex eo plus 435 quam se doloris capere; se enim gratiâ plurimum domi atque in reliquâ Galliâ, Dumnorigem minimum propter adulescentiam potuisse: illum per se crevisse: iis opibus illum non solum ad minuendam gratiam, sed paene ad perniciem suam usum esse. Sese tamen et amore fraterno et existimatione vulgi 440 commoveri. Quod si quid ei a Caesare gravius accidisset, cum ipse eum locum amicitiae apud eum teneret, omnes existimaturos id voluntate suâ factum esse: quam ob rem totius Galliae animos a se aversum iri.

- 33. Haec cum 'pluribus verbis flens a Caesare peteret, Caesar eius dextram prendit: consolatus rogat, ut finem orandi faciat: ostendit se tanti Divitiacum aestimare, ut et rei publicae iniuriam et suum dolorem eius voluntati ac precibus condonet. 450 Dumnorigem ad se vocat, fratrem adhibet: ostendit, quae in eo reprehendat: proponit, quae ipse intellegat, quae civitas queratur: monet, ut in reliquum tempus omnes suspiciones vitet; praeterita se Divitiaco fratri condonare dicit. Dumnorigi custodes 455 ponit, ut, quae agat, quibuscum loquatur, scire possit.
- 34. Eodem die ab exploratoribus certior factus est hostes sub monte consedisse milia Caesar resolves passuum ab ipsius castris octo: misit, to attack the enemy both in 460 qui cognoscerent, qualis esset natura front and rearred but is baulked montis et qualis in circuitu ascensus. The tertia vigilia Titum Labienum, legatum pro praetore, cum duabus

- 465 legionibus et iis ducibus qui iter cognoverant, summum iugum montis ascendere iubet: suum consilium ostendit. Ipse de quartâ vigilià eodem itinere, quo hostes ierant, ad eos contendit, equitatumque ante se mittit. P. Considius, qui rei militaris peri-470 tissimus habebatur, et in exercitu L. Sullae et postea in M. Crassi fuerat, cum exploratoribus praemittitur.
- 35. Primâ luce summus mons a Labieno tenebatur: Caesar ipse ab hostium castris non longius 475 mille et quingentis passibus aberat, neque, ut postea ab captivis comperit, aut ipsius adventus aut Labieni cognitus est: Considius, equo admisso, ad eum accurrit; dicet montem, quem a Labieno occupari voluerit, ab hostibus teneri: se id a Gallicis armis 480 atque insignibus cognovisse. Caesar suas copias in proximum collem subducit, aciem instruit. Caesar Labieno praeceperat, ne proelium committeret, nisi ipsius copiae prope hostium castra visae essent, ut undique uno tempore in hostes impetus fieret; 485 monte occupato, nostros exspectabat, proelioque abstinebat.
- 36. Multo denique die per exploratores Caesar cognovit, et montem a suis teneri, et Helvetios castra movisse, et Considium timore perterritum, 490 quod non vidisset, pro viso sibi renuntiasse: eodem die solito intervallo hostes sequitur, et milia passuum tria ab eorum castris castra ponit.

Postridie eius diei omnino biduum supererat, cum exercitui frumentum metiri oporteret, et quòd a Bibracte, oppido Aeduorum longe max- Caesar marches 495 imo et copiosissimo, non amplius milium to Bibracte, followed by the passuum duodeviginti aberat, rei fru-Helvetli. mentariae prospiciendum esse existimavit: iter ab Helvetiis avertit ac Bibracte ire contendit. Ea res per fugitivos L. Aemilii, decurionis equitum Gal-500 lorum, hostibus nuntiatur.

37. Helvetii Romanos summo timore perterritos discedere a se existimabant, quòd pridie, superioribus locis occupatis, proelium non commiserant. Eos re frumentarià intercludi posse confidebant. 505 Commutato consilio iter convertunt: nostros a novissimo agmine insequi ac lacessere coeperunt.

Caesar id animum advertit, et copias suas in proximum collem subduxit, equitatumque, qui sustineret hostium impetum, misit.

Ipse interim in colle medio triplicem aciem instruxit legionum quattuor veteranorum:
sed in summo iugo duas legiones, quas in Galliâ citeriore proxime conscripserat, et omnia auxilia conlocat: totum montem hominibus complet, et 515 interea sarcinas in unum locum confert, et eum ab his, qui in superiore acie constiterant, muniri iubet.

38. Helvetii, cum omnibus suis carris secuti, impedimenta in unum locum contulerunt: ipsi confertissima acie, reiecto nostro equitatu, phalangem 520 fecerunt et sub primam nostram aciem successerunt. Caesar, primum suum, deinde omnium ex conspectu equos removet; itaque aequato omnium periculo spem fugae tollit: cohortatus suos proe525 lium commisit. Milites e loco superiore pilis missis facile hostium phalangem perfregerunt. Eå disiectå, gladiis destrictis in eos impetum fecerunt. Gallis magno ad pugnam erat impedimento, quòd pluribus eorum scutis uno ictu pilorum transfixis et 530 conligatis, cum ferrum se inflexisset, neque evellere, neque, sinistrå impeditå, satis commode pugnare poterant, multi ut diu iactato brachio praeoptarent scutum manu emittere et nudo corpore pugnare.

535 39. Tandem vulneribus defessi et pedem referre et, quòd mons suberat circiter mille passuum, eò se recipere coeperunt. Capto monte, nostri succedunt. Boii et Tulingi, qui hominum milibus circiter quindecim agmen hostium claudebant et 540 novissimis praesidio erant, ex itinere nostros latere aperto aggressi, circumvenire coeperunt.

Id conspicati Helvetii, qui in montem sese receperant, rursus instare et proelium redintegrare coeperunt. Romani signa converterunt, et bipertito 545 intulerunt: prima et secunda acies, ut victis ac submotis militibus resisteret, tertia, ut venientes sustineret. Ita ancipiti proelio diu atque acriter pugnatum est.

- 40. Impetus nostrorum diutius sustinere non poterant: alteri se, ut coeperant, in montem rece-550 perunt; alteri ad impedimenta et carros suos se contulerunt. Nam hoc toto proelio, cum ab horâ septimâ ad vesperum pugnatum sit, aversum hostem videre nemo potuit. Ad multam noctem etiam ad impedimenta pugnatum est; propterea quòd pro 555 vallo carros obiecerant et e loco superiore in nostros venientes tela coniciebant, et nonnulli inter carros rotasque mataras ac tragulas subiciebant, nostrosque vulnerabant. Cum diu pugnatum esset, nostri impedimentis castrisque potiti sunt. Ibi 560 Orgetorigis filia atque unus e filiis captus est.
- 41. Ex eo proelio circiter hominum centum et triginta milia superfuerunt, eâque totâ nocte continenter ierunt. Iter nullam partem noctis intermiserunt: die quarto in fines Lingonum pervenerunt: 565 propter vulnera militum et propter sepulturam occisorum nostri triduum morati eos sequi non potuerunt. Caesar ad Lingonas litteras nuntiosque misit, ne eos frumento neve aliâ re iuvarent: qui si iuvissent, dixit, se eodem loco, quo Helvetios, habi-570 turum. Ipse, triduo intermisso, cum omnibus copiis eos sequi coepit.

Helvetii omnium rerum inopiâ adducti legatos de deditione ad eum miserunt. Qui cum TheHelvetiisur-eum in itinere convenissent, se ad sentaway home. 575 pedes proiecerunt, suppliciterque locuti flentes pacem petierunt: et cum eos in eo loco, quo tum essent, suum adventum exspectare iussisset, paruerunt.

- 580 42. Eò postquam Caesar pervenit, obsides, arma, servos, qui ad eos perfugissent, poposcit. Dum ea conquiruntur et conferuntur, nocte intermissâ, circiter hominum milia sex eius pagi, qui Verbigenus appellatur, sive timore perterriti, ne supplicio 585 adficerentur, sive spe salutis adducti, in tantâ multitudine dediticiorum suam fugam aut occultari aut omnino ignorari posse existimabant: itaque primâ nocte e castris Helvetiorum egressi ad Rhenum finesque Germanorum contenderunt. Quod ubi 590 Caesar resciit, quorum per fines ierant, his, ut conquirerent et reducerent, si sibi purgati esse vellent, imperavit: reductos in hostium numero habuit: reliquos omnes obsidibus, armis, perfugis traditis, in
- 43. Helvetios, Tulingos, Latovicos in fines suos, unde erant profecti, reverti iussit: quòd, omnibus frugibus amissis, domi nihil erat, quo famem tolerarent, Allobrogibus imperavit, ut iis frumenti copiam facerent; ipsos oppida vicosque, quos incenderant, 600 restituere iussit. Id maxime ea ratione fecit, quòd noluit, eum locum, unde Helvetii discesserant, vacare: ne propter bonitatem agrorum Germani, qui trans Rhenum incolunt, e suis finibus in Helvetiorum fines transirent, et finitimi Galliae provinciae deditionem accepit.

Allobrogibusque essent. Aedui petierunt, ut Boios 605 in finibus suis conlocarent, et Caesar concessit. His agros dederunt: et postea in eandem iuris libertatisque condicionem, quam ipsi habuerunt, receperunt.

domo exissent eorum, qui arma ferre possent, et item separatim pueri, senes mulieresque. Quarum 615 omnium rerum summa erat capitum Helvetiorum ducenta et sexaginta tria milia, Tulingorum sex et triginta milia, Latovicorum quattuordecim, Rauricorum tria et viginti, Boiorum duo et triginta; ex his qui arma ferre possent, ad nonaginta duo milia. 620 Summa omnium erat ad trecenta et sexaginta octo milia.

Eorum, qui domum redierunt, censu habito, ut Caesar imperaverat, reperti sunt centum et decem milia. 625

NOTES.

1. Gallia: except the Roman province, which had been subdued in B.C. 121, and Gallia Cisalpina.

omnis: not 'all Gaul,' but 'Gaul in its widest sense,' 'Gaul as a whole.'

divisa est, 'is divided': the adjective use of the participle. A. 291. b; H. 550. Note 2.

4. linguâ: abl. of specification. A. 253; H. 424; G. 398. "The language of the Aquitani was Basque; of the Gauls proper, Celtic; of the Belgians, probably Celtic mixed with German." Observe that the conjunction is either omitted entirely, as here, or is inserted so as to connect each noun with the following, as lingua et institutis et legibus; or one conjunction only is employed, viz. the enclitic -que, which is then appended to the last noun, as lingua, institutis legibusque.

inter se, 'one from another': used to express reciprocal action, and common with verbs of comparison or contrast. A. 196. f; H. 433. I; G. 212.

7. The Matrona (Marne) flows into the Sequana (Seine) a few miles above Paris.

dividit: sing., since the two rivers make one boundary only. A. 205. b; H. 463. II. 3; G. 281. 2.

9. provinciae. The district always spoken of by Caesar as provincia or provincia nostra lies to the south of the Cevenna Mons (now Cevennes), and extends from the Alps on the east to the river Garumna (now Garonne) on the west. It was called Gallia Transalpina, or Gallia ulterior, or simply provincia. It was also known later by the name of Gallia Narbonensis. The French Provence is a survival of the name provincia.

- 10. longissime absunt, 'are farthest removed from.'
- 14. Germanis: dat., with adj. denoting nearness. A. 234. a; H. 391. I; G. 356.

incolunt: intransitive here.

17. his de causis. A monosyllabic preposition is often placed between a noun and its adjective or limiting genitive. A. 345. a. 2; G. 680. R. 2.

reliquos, 'the rest of.' See on 473.

- 19. proeliis: abl. of means. A. 248. c; H. 420; G. 403.
- 22. Oceano: the Atlantic Ocean.
- 24. septentriones: (septem triones, "the seven plough-oxen"), the constellation of the 'Great Bear,' or 'Charles's Wain'; hence the 'North.' Also used in the singular.
 - 28. orientem solem, 'the east.'
- 31. occasum solis, 'the west.' Hence inter, etc., 'the north-west.'
 - 32. Helvetios. See Introduction.

 ${f ditissimus}$: contracted form of ${\it divitissimus}$, superlative of ${\it dives}$.

- 34. regni, 'regal power.'
- 35. nobilitatis. Nobilitas = the body of 'nobiles.' The Gauls were divided into two classes, rich and poor.
- 36. civitati: dat., after persuasit. A. 227; H. 385. II; G. 345 R. 2.
- ut...exirent: subjunctive, in a substantive clause of purpose, object of persuasit. A. 331 and footnote; H. 498. II; G. 546 and footnote. For the Imperfect tense, see A. 286 and R. (b); H. 493. 1; G. 510 and 512.
 - 37. copiis, 'belongings.'
- 39. id...persuasit: lit. 'he persuaded this to them,' and so 'he persuaded them to this (course).'
- 40. loci naturâ, 'by the character of the country,' i.e. by the Iura Mons on the west, the Lake of Geneva and the Rhone on the south, and the Rhine on the north and east. continentur, 'are confined.'

- 42. unâ ex parte, 'on one side' (lit. 'from').
- 49. finitimis: dat. of the indirect object. A. 225; H. 384. II and 1. 1); G. 344.
- 52. pro, 'in view of,' 'considering'; hence angusti = 'too narrow.'
- 54. milia passuum, 'miles.' The Roman mile, 1000 paces, was about 1618 yards in length, or about 1f of an English mile. Milia: acc. of extent of space (A. 257; H. 379; G. 335. 2); passuum: partitive gen. (A. 216. a. 2; H. 397. 2; G. 368).
 - 70. sibi suscepit, 'took on himself.'
 - civitates, 'clans,' such as the Sequani, Aedui, etc.
 - 72. regnum, 'unlimited power.'
- 74. amicus: a title granted by the Roman Senate to foreign and friendly princes.
 - 77. principatum, 'the first place,' in influence.
 - 80. firmissimos, 'most resolute.'
- 81. Galliae potiri, 'to obtain possession of Gaul.' potiri with gen., here only in C., i.e. Bk. 1.3 fin. The gen. depends on the noun idea in potiri (potior = dominus sum). A. 249. a and 223. a; H. 410. V. 3; G. 405. R. 3.

posse, having no supine stem, can have no future infin., and accordingly stands in the pres. after verbs of 'promising,' 'hoping,' etc.

- 82. per indicium, 'by information,' i.e. 'by informers.'
- 83. moribus suis, 'according to their custom.'
- ex vinclis, 'in chains,' lit. 'from ': cf. $ex\ equo=$ 'on horseback.'
- 85. si damnaretur, 'if he should be condemned: 'subjunctive, in a subordinate clause (future condition [A. 307. a and b; H. 508, 509; G. 597, 598]) in informal indirect discourse (A. 341. c. examp. 1 and 4; H. 528. 1; G. 509. 3. See also A. 336. 2; H. 524; G. 653), attracted into the imperfect tense by the sequence of tenses (A. 336. B and 337 3. examp. 1; H. 527 and 493; G. 657). The distinction between the more vivid and less vivid future conditions is obscured in indirect discourse. A. 337. a; G. 659. 3. II. Cf. n. on 149.

- 86. dicendae causae, 'for making his defence': gen. case.
- 87. familiam includes relations, slaves, vassals, and debtors reduced to a condition of slavery.
- 91. per eos, 'by their means.' A. 246. b; H. 415. I. 1. Note 1; G. 403.
 - 92. incitata, 'enraged.'

ius suum, 'its rights.' Orgetorix procured his acquittal by intimidation, but the 'magistrates' roused the people to arms to maintain their authority.

- 96. sibi mortem conscivisse, 'committed suicide.'
- 100. oppida, 'strongholds.'
- 101. reliqua privata aedificia = reliqua aedificia quae privata erant.
 - 102. praeterquam quod: lit., 'further than what.'
- 104. domum reditionis. The verbal substantive reditionis is followed by the acc. domum, just as its verb (redire) would be. A. 258. b; H. 380. II. 2. 1); G. 342. R. 2.
- 105. ad pericula subeunda: gerundive with ad, expressing purpose. A. 318. (4) and 300; H. 544. 2. Note 2 (cf. 542. III. Note 2); G. 433 and 428. See also A. 296. examp. 1.
- 106. Baurici...Tulingi...Latovici: tribes on the German side of the Rhine.
 - 110. ad se, 'into their own number.'
- 111. itinera duo, quibus itineribus. The antecedent of the relative pronoun is repeated in the relative clause for the sake of emphasis and clearness. A. 200. a; H. 445. 8; G. 617.
- 113. Sequanos. The Sequani were west and north of the Iura Mons, in the region now called Franche Comté. See map.
- 114. inter... Rhodanum: i.e. along the right bank of the Rhone to the Pas-de-l'Ecluse and Culoz.
- 117. alterum. To take the other direction, the Helvetii must have overwhelmed the legion which guarded the Rhone at Geneva, and forced the passage of the river there.

multo facilius, 'much easier,' for their immediate purpose, that is, of leaving Switzerland, not for their ultimate object; for it required them to force their way through about 50 miles of territory occupied by the Roman arms, and every mile further south would make them enter France at a point more disadvantageous for crossing the Cevenna Mons on their way to the Santoni (see on 197).

121. vado: abl. of means. See on 19.

 $transitur = transeundus \ est.$

- 122. Allobrogum. See on 219.
- 125. cogere. Observe the omission of the object, Allobroges.
- Suos: i.e. of the Allobroges. eos (i.e. Helvetios): used instead of se to avoid ambiguity. A. 196. a. 2. Note.
- ut...patiantur: subjunctive, in substantive clause of purpose. A. 331 and footnote; H. 498. II and footnote 2; G. 546 and footnote. Cf. n. on 36.
- 131. ab urbe, 'from the neighbourhood of the city (Rome).' 'From the city,' would be ex urbe. The three provinces of Cisalpine and Transalpine Gaul and Illyricum had just been conferred upon Caesar for a term of five years. He had received the military authority of proconsul, the imperium, and was preparing to set out for his province. While holding such authority a commanding general was not allowed to enter Rome.
 - 132. ulteriorem = transalpinam. See on 9 and 135.

ad Genavam, 'into the vicinity of Geneva.'

- 133. maximum...imperat, 'makes requisition on the whole province for a very large number of troops': dat. of the indirect with acc. of the direct object. A. 225; H. 384. II and 1. 1); G. 344. Cf. n. on 49.
- 135. Gallia ulteriore: the Province; called ulterior, in contrast to Gallia citerior, which lay on the Italian side of the Alps, Gallia Cisalpina. Cf. n. on 9.
 - 136. ad, 'near,' 'close by.'
 - 141. obtinebant, 'held.'
 - 142. eius: i.e. Caesar.
- 144. L. Cassium. In B.C. 107 the Tigurini, one of the cantons of the Helvetii, marched into the territory of the Allobroges.

led by Divico. They defeated the consul Lucius Cassius Longinus, who was killed in the engagement.

- 147. concedendum esse: impersonal, 'that permission ought to be given.' A. 146. d; H. 301. 1 and 2, and 195. II. 1; G. 199. R. 1. Cf. n. on 243.
- 148. facultas itineris faciendi: objective genitive. A. 298. examp. 1; H. 542. I, 543 and 544; G. 429.
- 149. si...daretur: subjunctive, in a subordinate clause (= future condition) in indirect discourse (homines temperaturos esse) (A. 336. 2; H. 524; G. 653), attracted into the imperfect tense by the sequence of tenses. See on 85.

inimico animo, 'of hostile temper': abl. of quality. A. 251; H. 419. II; G. 402.

- 150. temperaturos esse, 'would refrain.'
- 151. diem, 'time.'
- 153. imperaverat, 'had demanded,' 'levied.' See l. 133.
- 155. ad, 'by.' Idus Apriles, 'April 13th.' A. 376. ff.; H. 642. ff.; G. p. 387.
 - 156. lacu Lemanno: the Lake of Geneva, Lake Leman.
- 157. influit. Caesar is speaking of the west end of the lake where the river Rhone flows from it.
- 159. murum et fossam. The wall and ditch were made from the point where the Rhone flows from the lake to a point on the southern bank of the river, close to where the Iura Mons abuts on the north bank of the Rhone at the Fort de l'Ecluse. "The banks of the Rhone in this part are generally rugged and steep, with sharp ravines; there are only five short reaches—a little over three miles in all—in this course of eighteen miles requiring defences. According to Caesar's statement, the work was continuous (perducit). This undoubtedly means that after the five accessible points were strengthened by artificial defences, the entire left bank of the Rhone, from Géneva to the Pas-de-l'Ecluse, formed a continuous barrier against the Helvetians."
 - 162. si transire conarentur. See on 85, and cf. n. on 149.
 - 166. negat se posse, 'he says that he cannot.'
 - 167. si vim facere conarentur. See on 149 and 85.

- 169. eâ spe deiecti, 'disappointed in this hope,' lit. 'cast down from,' etc.
 - 176. conatu: abl. of separation. A. 243; H. 414; G. 388.
 - 177. una, 'only one.' This is now the Pas-de-l'Ecluse.
 - 180. suâ sponte, 'by their own influence,' = per se.
- 182. ut...sit: subst. clause of purpose, object of the request implied in legatos mittunt. See on 125.
 - 184. plurimum poterat apud, 'had very great influence with.'
- 187. in matrimonium duxerat, 'had married.' Ducere uxorem was said of the man, who conducted his bride to his own house, as a part of the marriage ceremony. The woman was said nubere (se) viro (dat.), 'to veil herself for a husband.'
- 188. novis rebus studebat, 'was aiming at a revolution:' dat. case. A. 227. e. 3; H. 384. I; G. 345.
- 191. eo deprecatore, 'in consequence of his intercession': abl. absol. A. 255. a and d; H. 431. 4 and footnote; G. 408 and R.
 - 194. ne...prohibeant, 'not to hold back the Helvetii from their march': a substantive clause of negative purpose, object of the idea expressed in dant obsides. A. 331; H. 498. I; G. 546. See on 182.
 - 195. ut ... transeant: same as above, but positive.
 - 197. Sequanorum. The Sequani were a Keltic tribe between the Arar (now Saône), Rhone, and Mons Iura.
 - Aeduorum. The Aedui were powerful Keltic tribes dwelling between the Liger (now Loire) and Arar.
 - Santonum: the older form in -ûm = ōrum. Hence, nom. pl. Santoni better than Santones. So Teutoni, Cimbri, and several other names of tribes in Caesar. The Santoni occupied the country on the lower Garumna. Cf. modern Saintonyes.
 - 199. Tolosatium. The capital of the Tolosates, Tolosa, the modern Toulouse, on the Garumna, was taken by Aulus Servius Caepio, B.C. 106, in the war with the Cimbri and Teutoni.
 - 203. si...haberent. See on 149 and 85.

- 206. in Italiam, 'into Italy,' i.e. Cisalpine Gaul, citerior provincia.
- magnis itineribus, 'by forced marches': between 20 and 25 miles per day.
- 208. circum Aquileiam. Winter quarters were not in a town, but round it: cf. Xen. Anab. 1. 2. 5, $K\tilde{v}_{pos}$... $\omega_{p\mu\tilde{a}ro}$ $\tilde{a}\pi\delta$ (not $\tilde{\epsilon}\kappa$) $\Sigma \tilde{a}\sigma \delta \epsilon \omega \nu$. Aquileia was situated at the head of the Adriatic. Several legions were quartered there for the purpose of resisting the Gauls and Illyrians.
- 213. The Ceutrones and Caturiges were tribes in the Province; the Graioceli were a tribe of the Graian Alps, whose principal town was Ocelum.
- 217. ab Ocelo pervenit, 'came through from the neighbourhood of Ocelum.' Caesar probably marched into Gaul over the M. Genèvre. Under Augustus, the more direct way by M. Cenis (the Cottian Alps) began to be used.

Vocontiorum: a Keltic tribe in the Province.

- 219. Allobrogum. The Allobroges (sing. Allobrox) were a powerful Keltic people of Gaul, living between the Rhone, the Isara (now Isère), the Lake of Geneva, and the Alps. See map.
- 220. Segusiavos: a Keltic tribe west of the Rhone and Arar, neighbours of the Allobroges.
- 221. trans Rhodanum: i.e. west of the Rhone, which, at Lyons, turns abruptly to the south.
- 222. per angustias: i.e. through the Pas-de-l'Ecluse. Caesar's object was to head off the Helvetii, who had already reached the Arar and were crossing into the territory of the Aedui. Caesar's army at this time amounted to about 24,000 men; the Helvetii numbered, in men, women and children, nearly 400,000, of whom about 90,000 were warriors.
- 225. populabantur. Notice the change of tense, 'were laying waste.'
 - 226. se suaque, 'themselves and their possessions.'
 - 228. omni tempore, 'always.'
- 235. Ambarri: a Keltic tribe, west of the Allobroges, on both banks of the Arar, and clients of the Aedui.

NOTES. 33

Caesarem certiorem faciunt, 'inform Caesar.' So, 'to be informed' = certior fieri.

241. nihil reliqui, 'nothing remaining.' Reliqui is the neuter genitive of reliquis, a, um, used as a noun; cf. multum boni, plus mali, etc. Partitive gen. A. 216. a. 1; H. 397. 1; G. 371.

practer agri solum, 'except the bare soil.'

- 243. non exspectandum, etc., 'decided that he ought not to wait': impersonal use of gerundive with esse understood. See on 147. For sibi, dat. of the agent, see A. 232; H. 388; G. 353.
- 244. dum...pervenirent, 'until they should arrive.' Dum (temporal), implying purpose, doubt, or futurity, takes the subjunctive, otherwise the indicative. A. 328; H. 519. II. 2; G. 574.
- 245. sociorum: the Aedui, who had been allies of the Romans for 50 years, and the Allobroges.
- 246. flumen est Arar, etc., 'the Saône is a river which flows, etc.' The Arar flows into the Rhone about 75 miles southwest of Lake Geneva. It forms the boundary between the Aedui and Sequani.
- 249. fluat: subjunctive, in an indirect question, subject of potest. A. 334; H. 529. I; G. 469. in utram partem, 'in which direction.'
 - 251. transibant, 'were in the act of crossing.'
- 252. exploratores. These were not individual spies (speculatores), but small detachments of troops, most frequently cavalry, sent to reconnoitre the country.
 - 253. tres iam partes, 'fully three parts.'
- transisse. For the Infinitive with Subject-Accusative, see A. 272; H. 536 and 535. I. 3; G. 527 and 341.
- 254. Ararim. Names of rivers of this declension have the acc. in -im. A. 56. a. 1; H. 62. III. 1; G. 60. a.

reliquam = relictam.

- 255. de tertia vigilia, 'in the course of the third watch.' The Roman night, from sunset to sunrise, was divided into four equal vigiliae, two of which fell before, two after midnight.
 - 260. mandarunt = mandaverunt. A. 128. a; H. 235; G. 191. 5.

- 261. in silvas abdiderunt: pregnant construction, 'betook themselves to the woods and hid there.'
 - 262. is pagus, 'this district,' i.e. this part of the Helvetii.
- 263. quattuor pagos. Caesar says that Helvetia is divided into four cantons, or districts. He gives the names of only two, Tigurinus and Verbigēnus. The former is about the modern Zürich.
 - 268. insignem calamitatem. See on 142.
- 270. princeps poenas persolvit, 'was the first to pay the penalty.'
- 272. iniurias, 'wrongs': used by later writers, such as Pliny and Seutonius, in the simple sense of 'damage.' In Caesar's eyes all offensive warfare against Romans was necessarily wrong.
- 273. eius soceri: Caesar's father-in-law, L. Calpurnius Piso (consul B.C. 58), whose daughter, Calpurnia, Caesar had married the year before.
 - 275. in Arare, 'on the Arar.'
- 281. id...fecerat: viz., had bridged the Arar. It must have been done by boats.
- viginti diebus, 'in the course of 20 days': time within which. A. 256; H. 429; G. 392.
- 282. ut...transirent: a substantive clause of result, regarded as in apposition with id, though essentially the object of fecerat, a verb denoting the accomplishment of an effort. A. 332; H. 501. II. 1; G. 557.
- 284. Divico. He must now have been a very old man, for the battle with Cassius had been fought 49 years before, in B.C. 107.
- 285. bello Cassiano: abl. of time when (generally found with an adjective or a genitive). See A. 259. a and 256; H. 429; G. 392.
- 287. egit: agere cum 'to have dealings with'; here 'to hold parley with.'
- 288. si...volet...ibimus: a more vivid future condition. A. 307, a; H. 508. examp. 4 and 5; G. 597. examp. 4 and 5.
- 291. sin...perseveres: subjunctive, in a less vivid future condition. A. 307. b; H. 509; G. 598.

ne oblitus sis, 'be not forgetful of.' The Imperative or any form denoting future time may stand in the apodosis of a future condition (A. 307. d). Ne with the present imperative is not used in good prose: it usually takes the perf. subjunctive in the second person, the pres. or perf. subjunctive in the third person. A. 266. b and 269. a; H. 489. 3) and 484. IV. Note 1; G. 263 and 266.

292. virtutis: gen. with a verb of forgetting. A. 219. I; 406. II; G. 375.

295. his: i.e. legatis.

296. me invito, 'without my permission,' lit. 'I being unwilling': abl. absol. See on 191.

298. Allobrogas. The Greek form of the acc. plural is usual in the case of foreign names. Cf. A. 63, f and 64; H. 68; G. 73.

cum ea ita sint: concessive clause, 'whereas (although) these things are so.' A. 313. d; H. 515. III; G. 581. III. 2 and 588.

303. ut...consueverimus: subjunctive, in a pure clause of result. A. 319. I; H. 500. II; G. 553-556.

307. vident: plural, as equitatus is collective.

quas...faciant: subj., in indirect question.

308. cupidius, 'too eagerly.'

novissimum agmen, 'the rear of the column.' Novus, like vetus, has in good Latin no comparative. Vetustior (from vetustus) supplies the place of veterior, and magis novus of novior. Novissimus always means 'last.'

309. alieno loco, 'on unfavourable (lit. 'another's') ground': in contrast with suo loco, 'favourable,' lit. 'one's own.' The country was hilly.

310. et, 'and thereupon.'

pauci de nostris, 'a few of our soldiers.' The rest had fled.

312. sublati sunt, 'were elated.'

314. novissimo agmine: abl. of place where (locative abl.). A. 254, 258. c and f; H. 425. II. 1; G. 384.

- 315. proelio: abl. of means.
- 319. iter fecerunt, 'marched.'
- 320. nostrum primum (agmen), 'our first line,' 'the van.'
- 321. quinis aut senis: abl. of comparison, after amplius. A. 247; H. 417; G. 399. But amplius, minus, plus, longius, often occur without influencing the case of the word of number or measure which follows (cf. 8. 10. 4, non amplius erant quingenti). A. 247. c; H. 417. 1. Note 2; G. 311. R. 4. The distributive numeral shows that the interval was kept each day. Caesar could have secured no advantage here by an attack on the Helvetian rear, on account of the broken character of the country.
- 324. quod essent polliciti, 'which, as he reminded them, they had promised.' Such is the force of the subjunctive. A. 341. d; H. 528. 1; G. 509. 3. The relative clause is a part of Caesar's demand, Caesar being regarded as a person other than the writer. Hence the clause is in informal indirect discourse. Cf. n. on 85.
- flagitabat, 'kept demanding.' Note the two accusatives, Aeduos frumentum, after the verb of asking. A. 239. 2. c; H. 374; G. 333.
- 325. frigora, 'cold climate.' For the plural cf. Tac. Agr. 12, asperitas frigorum abest. Clearing away the forests and draining the marshes have rendered the climate of France much warmer to-day than it was in Caesar's time.

frumenta: the plural regularly used of the crops before they are mowed.

- 329. frumento: abl., governed by uti. A. 249; H. 421. I; G. 405.
- flumine: abl. of the way by which. A. 258. g and Note; H. 425. II. 1.1) and 420. 1. 3); G. 387.

navibus: abl. of means.

- 331. ab Arare: i.e. to the northwest, into the valley of the Liger.
- 333. diem ex die, 'day by day,' 'from day to day.' diem is an adverbial acc. The object of ducunt, 'put (him) off,' is tempus or Caesarem.

- 334. 'say (said) that the corn was collecting (through the efforts of individuals), was coming in (to Caesar), was close at hand.'
 - 335. diutius, 'too long.'
- 338. frumentum...metiri, 'to give the soldiers their allowance of corn.' Each infantry soldier had a monthly allowance of 4 bushels of corn; each of the cavalry, 12 of corn and 42 of barley.
 - 340. magistratui: in the abstract sense, 'office.'
 - 341. tam necessario tempore, 'at so critical a period.'
- 342. propinquis. Note that while necessario is attributive, propinquis is predicative, 'with the enemy so near': abl. absol.; see on 191; cf. n. on 296.
- 343. quod...sublevetur: subjunctive, because the reason is given on the authority of another, Caesar always speaking of himself in the third person. Informal indirect discourse. A. 341. d and 321. 2; H. 528. 1 and 516. II; G. 541. Cf. n. on 324 and 85.

quod sit. See above.

- 344. magnå ex parte, 'to a great extent.'
- 345. cum...susceperit: concessive clause, 'although,' etc. See on 298. See also A. 342; H. 529. II. Note 1. 1); G. 666.
 - 348. plurimum valet apud, 'has most weight with.'
- 349. privatim plus possunt, 'have more power as private individuals.'
- 351. ne...conferant: a substantive clause of purpose, following (like a secondary object) a verb denoting an effort to hinder. A. 331. e. 2; H. 505. II; G. 547-549.
 - 352. iam...non, 'no longer.'
 - 353. possimus. Why subjunctive?
- 355. si...superaveritis: perf. subjunctive, representing fut. perf. indic. of direct discourse (more vivid future condition). See references to grammar on 345. Cf. n. on 441.
- 357. quin...sitis erepturi: subjunctive, in a relative clause of result, following a negation of doubt. A. 319. d and 332. g. R;

- H. 504. 3. 2) and 505. I. 1; G. 551. 2 and R. 1. The present subj. eripiatis might be substituted for the strong future of the text.
 - 361. enuntiem: indirect question.
 - 362. quam diu potui, 'as long as I have been able.'
- 364. pluribus praesentibus: abl. absol. in place of temporal clause, 'while several people were present.' A. 255. d. I; H. 431. 2; G. 409 and R. 2.
 - 367. ex solo, 'from him in private.'
 - 368. dicit: i.e. Liscus.
 - 369. secretò (secerno), 'apart' (from Liscus).
- 371. summâ audaciâ, 'of the utmost daring': abl. of quality. A. 251; H. 419. II; G. 402.
- 374. gratiâ magnâ: abl. of quality, '(a man) of great influence' The omission of some such word as vir, homo, is unusual.
- 375. novarum rerum cupidum, 'eager for change' 'for a revolution.' Cf. n. on 188.
- 376. complures annos: acc. of duration of time. A. 240. e; H. 379; G. 337.

portoria: tolls paid for goods going in and coming out of seaports; also tolls on rivers, bridges, and payable at frontiers.

377. vectigalia: all revenues; a wider term than portoria.

parvo pretio: abl. of price, 'at a small cost.' A. 252; H. 422; G. 404.

378. illo licente, 'when he was bidding.' See on 364. The Aedui seem to have had the same practice of letting out the taxes as the Romans. At Rome those who contracted to farm the taxes for a sum of money were called publicani, and they sub-let particular districts to underlings. The taxes amongst the Aedui were put up at public auction, and when Dumnorix bid, no one dared to bid against him.

- 379. rem familiarem, 'his private fortune.'
- 380. facultates, 'means.'
- ad largiendum, 'for bribery,' to gain political support. A. 300; H. 542. III and Note 2; G. 433. Cf. n. on 105.

383. domi: locative, 'in his own state' or 'tribe.' A. 258. d; H. 426. 2; G. 412. R. 1.

7.

384. largiter poterat, 'had wide influence.' The verb possum used absolutely = potens sum requires an adverb; cf. plus possunt. 1. 349.

385. causa, in the sense of 'for the sake of,' always follows its genitive. The Bituriges were a Keltic tribe separated from the Aedui by the Liger. Their chief towns were Noviodunum and Avaricum.

386. conlocaverat, 'had given in marriage.' Understand nuptum (supine), or in matrimonium. Cf. n. on 187.

388. uxorem duxerat, 'had married a wife' (Orgetorix's daughter). See on 187.

391. favet, 'he has sympathies with.' Helvetiis: dative.

392. suo nomine, 'on his own account,' 'on personal grounds': a metaphor taken from mercantile life.

396. si quid accidat, 'if anything (i.e. disaster) should befall': a euphemism or softening of a harsh suggestion. He does not like to say defeat. Why subjunctive?

397. posse. See on 81. But obtinere posse is practically a future infinitive, = obtenturum esse.

imperio, 'under the rule of': abl. of time when, and of cause.

400. in quaerendo, 'in the course of his inquiries.'

401. paucis diebus: abl. of degree of difference, expressing distance (measure) of time before.

ante: adverb, 'a few days before.' A. 250 and 259. d;
H. 423. Note 2 and 430; G. 400. R. 3.

402. cum...gessissent: temporal clause (A. 325; H. 521. II. 2; G. 581. II) in indirect discourse.

404. auxilio Caesari, 'as an aid to Caesar.'

auxilio: dat. of service (purpose). Caesari: dat. of the person affected. A. 233. a and footnote; H. 390; G. 350. Cf. n. on 528.

¹ The student is referred to Professor W. G. Hale on the cum-constructions, "Cornell University Studies," Ithaca, N.Y.

405. nam...pracerat. This sentence is parenthetical. After it the construction of the acc. with infin., depending on repericbat, is resumed.

407. res. 'facts.'

- 410. dandos. The gerundive is used in agreement with the object of such verbs as do, 'give,' curo, 'take care of,' loco, 'give a contract,' conduco, 'take a contract,' suscipio, 'undertake,' and others, to denote what is to be done to that object, (purpose). A. 294. d; H. 544. 2. Note 2; G. 431.
- 413. satis causae esse, 'that there was sufficient reason': partitive gen., with adverb of quantity. A. 216.4; H. 397.4 and footnote: G. 371.
- 414. in eum animadverteret, 'punish him': subjunctive, in a relative clause of characteristic. A. 320; H. 503. I and Note 2; G. 633, 634. The clause also stands in indirect discourse.
 - 416. his omnibus rebus, 'to all these considerations.'
- 417. Divitiacus was the most Romanized of all the Gauls. When in Rome, in B.C. 63, he frequented the best society, and enjoyed the acquaintance of Cicero, who consulted him, as a Druid, on the subject of his treatise de Divinatione.
 - 418. studium, 'attachment,' as partisan.
 - 419. cognoverat, 'he well knew,' lit. 'had learned.'
- 420. verebatur ne offenderet. For substantive clauses of purpose after verbs of fearing, see A. 331. f; H. 498. III; G. 552.

eius supplicio, 'by punishing him,' i.e. Dumnorix.

eius: objective gen.

- 423. C. The character c (surd palatal) always retained the force of the sonant palatal g in the abbreviations C. (for Gaius), and Cn. (Gnaeus). A. 6 and 80. d; H. 2. 3 and 649. 1.
 - 424. principem, 'a distinguished man.'
- 425. cui...habebat, 'in whom he was wont to place full confidence in regard to all matters.'
 - 428. dicta sint: why subjunctive?

429. de eo apud se, 'about him (Dumnorix) in his (Caesar's) presence.'

dixerit: why subjunctive?

430. eius (= Divitiaci) limits offensione animi, which practically form one word = 'displeasure.'

ipse: Caesar.

- 431. causa cognita statuat, 'may hear the case and decide.' Why subjunctive? See on 36.
 - 433. gravius, 'too severe': an adjective modifying quid. statuat: why subjunctive? See on 36.
- 435. nec...capere, 'and that no one can be more pained at it than he.'

doloris: partitive gen., with plus.

437. per se: Divitiacus.

438. opibus: governed by usum esse.

- 439. suam refers to Divitiacus, and is to be taken with gratiam as well as perniciem.
- 440. amore fraterno: for amore fratris. A. 190. b; H. 395. Note 2; cf. G. 363. R.
- 441. si quid...accidisset, 'if anything at all severe should befall him at Caesar's hands': pluperf. subjunctive, representing the fut. perf. indic. (acciderit) of the direct discourse; a more vivid future condition, attracted into the past by the sequence of tenses. A. 307. f; H. 525. 2; G. 660. examp. 5.
 - 442. ipse: Divitiacus.

apud eum: Caesar.

- 443. suâ refers to Divitiacus.
- 445. aversum iri: fut. pass. infin., 'that the heart of all Gaul would be estranged from him.'
- 448. tanti, 'so highly': gen. of indefinite value (price). A. 252. a; H. 405; G. 379.
- 449. rei publicae: objective gen. after iniuriam, 'the wrong done to the state.'

450. eius voluntati: dat. after condonet (='forgives'), 'in consideration of his good will.'

ut...condonet. See on 303.

- 451. fratrem adhibet, 'he has his brother present.'
- 454. praeterita: neut. pl., 'things bygone,' 'the past.'
- 455. custodes comes to mean 'spies.'
- 456. ponit = adponit, 'sets over Dumnorix.' Caesar pretended to yield to the prayers of Divitiacus, but in fact he yielded to necessity. He knew that if he treated Dumnorix harshly he would thereby estrange the Aedui, and all his allies, on whom his army was dependent for food.
 - agat...loquatur...possit: why subjunctive?
- 461. qui cognoscerent, 'to ascertain': subjunctive, in a relative clause of purpose. A. 317. 2 and 3. Note; H. 497. I; G. 632.

natura, 'character.'

- 462. qualis in circuitu ascensus, 'what was the chance of ascending it on its various sides.'
 - 463. de. See on 255.
- 464. legatum pro praetore, 'a lieutenant with praetorian powers,' i.e. with the imperium or power to command. The legati of the commander-in-chief were staff-officers, aides-decamp, quos comites et adiutores negotiorum dedit ipsa res publica (Cic. ad Quint. Fr. 1. 3). In battle they were placed in command of the different army corps, but they might be assigned to independent commands for limited periods. Labienus and other lieutenants of Caesar received the imperium in their own right, by the lex Vatinia.
 - 465. ducibus, 'as guides.'

- 469. rei militaris peritissimus. The objective gen. is used after adjectives signifying knowledge, skill, etc., and their opposites. A. 218. a; H. 399. I. 2; G. 373.
 - 470. L. Sullae: the Dictator, Lucius Cornelius Sulla.
- 471. M. Crassi. Marcus Licinius Crassus defeated Spartacus and the insurgent slaves in Lucania, B.C. 371.

473. primâ luce, 'at daybreak.'

summus mons, 'the top of the mountain,' not 'the highest mountain.' A. 193; H. 440. 2. Note 1, 2; G. 287. R.

477. equo admisso, 'at full gallop': equum admittere, 'to give a horse the reins.'

479. voluerit: i.e. Caesar. Subjunctive, in a dependent (rel.) clause in indirect discourse. A. 336. 2; H. 524; G. 653.

480. insignibus: the decorations of the Gallic armour, i.e. the 'devices' on shields and helmets, such as stags' horns, eagles' plumes, etc. Caesar inferred from this information that Labienus had been repulsed, and that he must expect an attack at once.

482. ne...committeret. See on 36.

483. ipsius: i.e. Caesar.

nisi... visae essent. See on 441.

484. ut, 'in order that': introducing a pure clause of purpose.

485. monte occupato, etc., 'having seized the height, he awaited the approach of our men': referring to Labienus.

487. multo die, 'late in the day.' Cf. ad multam noctem, l. 554.

490. quod non vidisset, 'what he had not seen.' See on 479. Understand id as object of renuntiasse.

pro viso, 'as if seen.' Considius thought that Labienus' troops on the mountain were Gauls.

491. solito intervallo: five or six Roman miles. Distance in space is more commonly expressed by the acc.; but when there is no verb of distance like abesse; distance, the abl. is regular as well as the acc.

milia: acc. of extent of space. A. 257; H. 379; G. 335. 2.

493. postridie eius diei, 'on the day after that day,' 'on the next day.' A. 223. Note 2; H. 398. 5.

omnino, 'in all,' 'only.'

cum marks the time at the end of which the corn was to be distributed: 'only two days were wanting to the time when.'

- 495. Bibracte: celebrated as the druidical capital of Gaul; the modern Mont Beuvray, about 10 miles west of Autun.
 - 496. amplius. Understand spatio.
 - 497. rei frumentariae, 'corn supply': dative.
 - 498. prospiciendum esse. See on 147. Cf. n. on 243.
- 500. fugitivos L. Aemilii, 'deserters from Lucius Aemilius': lit. 'runaway slaves,' used contemptuously for perfugas. L. Aemilius, as decurio, commanded a part of the cavalry of Caesar's Gallic allies.

decurionis. In Caesar's army the mass of the cavalry was composed of auxiliaries, and was divided into alae or battalions. The alae were divided into 10 turmae, or troops, and these again into 3 decuriae, commanded by decuriones. Aemilius was the senior of the three in his turma.

504. superioribus locis occupatis, 'though they had secured the higher ground,' A. 255. d. 3; H. 431. 2; G. 409 and R. 2.

505. eos: the Romans.

intercludi: followed, in the active voice, by the acc. of the person and the abl. of the thing. Here the acc. (eos) becomes the subject of posse. A. 225. d; H. 384. 2 and footnote 1; G. 348. The abl. is one of separation. The Helvetii believed that they could hinder the Romans from reaching Bibracte where their supplies were.

- 506. iter convertunt: a fatal step. Caesar, at this time, had about 60,000 men; the Helvetians about 70,000.
- 508. animum advertit = vertit animum ad: usually written as one word, animadvertit, 'turned his mind upon,' 'noticed.' Hence the direct object id.
 - 510. qui sustineret, 'to check.' See on 461.
- 511. colle medio, 'the middle of the hill,' 'the hill half-way up.' Cf. summus mons, on 473.
- 512. triplicem...veteranorum, 'drew up four veteran legions in triple line of battle.' The legion consisted of 10 cohorts. These were formed in 3 lines in such a way that of the 10 cohorts 4 were in front, 3 in the rear of these, covering the intervals between the cohorts, and again in the rear of these 3 more covering the cohorts of the first line, thus:—

The intervals between the cohorts in each line were equal in length to that of a cohort.

513. in summo iugo, 'on the tableland at the top.' See on 511.

514. auxilia: strictly, troops of non-Latin origin, as opposed to legiones and socii.

515. hominibus: abl. of means, used with verbs of filling, abounding, and the like. A. 248. c. 2; H. 421. II and footnote 1; G. 389 and R. 1.

516. eum, 'this (place).'

517. his: the two legions recently enrolled in Gallia citerior, L 513.

qui...constiterant, 'which were posted (lit. 'had taken their stand') in the upper (i.e. rear) line.'

520. confertissimâ acie, 'in very close order': abl. of manner, adverbial to successerunt which follows. A. 248; H. 419. III; G. 401.

rejecto, etc., 'after repelling our cavalry, formed their phalanx.'

phalangem. The order of battle was the phalanx, a continuous line, without break, eight deep. "In the phalanx of the Helvetii the shields of the front ranks overlapped each other, but were not, as in the testudo, held over the head. To break this solid front was the chief use of the Roman pilum."

521. successerunt sub, 'drew up to,' 'came up under.'

522. suum. Supply equum.

omnium: his mounted staff, not all the cavalry.

528. Gallis = Helvetiis: dat. of the person affected.

impedimento: dat. of service (purpose). See references on 404.

ad pugnam. ad indicates the relation of the hindrance (impedimento) to the person affected (Gallis).

quod introduces the substantive causal clause, which is subject of erat. A. 329. R and 3 and 333; H. 540. IV. Note; G. 524, 525.

530. cum, 'since,' 'seeing that.' A. 326; H. 517; G. 587.

ferrum, 'the iron-head' of the pilum. This head was about $4\frac{1}{2}$ feet long, and its weight would carry it at once through several of the light shields of the enemy.

se inflexisset, 'had got bent.'

531. evellere, 'to pull them out,' i.e. the pila.

sinistra impeditâ, 'since the left hand was hampered.' A. 255. d. 2; H. 431. 2; G. 409. examp. 6. See on 582. Cf. 504.

532. multi ut...praeoptarent, 'so that many preferred': pure clause of result.

533. nudo corpore, 'with the person exposed': abl. of manner.

535. pedem referre, 'to give way,' 'to fall back.' 'To retreat' = terga vertere.

536. mille: acc. of extent of space. See on 491.

circiter: adverb.

537. capto monte, 'the mountain having been reached,' by the enemy.

539. agmen hostium claudebant, 'brought up the rear of the enemy.' The Helvetii had faced round to attack Caesar. The Boii and Tulingi who had been in front were, by this manœuvre, placed in the rear of the Helvetian line of march.

540. ex itinere, 'straight from their march,' 'as they were marching.'

latere aperto, 'on the exposed flank.'

541. coeperunt. The manœuvre was not carried out.

544. signa converterunt, 'wheeled round,' 'faced about'; lit. 'reversed their ensigns.'

- 545. intulerunt (signa), 'charged.' bipertito, 'in two divisions,' i.e. with two fronts.
 - 546. victis ac submotis: the Helvetii on the hill.

venientes: the Boil and Tulingi.

- 547. ancipiti, 'double': referring to the two fronts, which stood, not back to back, but at an angle. See plan of battle.
 - 550. alteri: the Helvetii.
 - 551. alteri: the Boii and Tulingi.
- 552. nam, etc., '(I say se contulerunt, not fugerunt) for, in the course of this whole battle, although the fighting continued 'from the seventh hour until evening, no one had an opportunity to see an enemy in flight.'

aversum = fugientem: lit. 'an enemy turned away.'

hora septima: about 12 o'clock. The time from sunriseto sunset was divided into twelve equal parts (horae) in such a way that the seventh hora would begin about noon.

hoc...proelio. See on 563.

- 554. ad multam noctem, 'till far on in the night.'
- 556. eloco superiore, 'from this vantage-ground,' i.e. the elevation afforded by the carts.
- 558. The matarae were hurled from the hand; the tragulae were swung by means of a strap.
- 561. captus est agrees with the nearest subject, unus, but applies as well to the more remote filia. According to Plutarch (Vit. Caes. ch. 18) even the women and children, who were stored among the baggage-wagons, fought on this occasion till they were massacred.
- 563. eâ...nocte: abl. expressing duration of time. A. 256. b and Note; H. 379. 1; G. 392. R. 2. So also hoc toto proelio, l. 552.
 - 568. Lingonas. See on 298.
- 569. ne...iuvarent: subst. clause of purpose, object of the command implied in litteras nuntiosque misit. See on 182.
- 570. qui si iuvissent, 'for if they should aid them' = nam si ii iuvissent. See on 441.

se...habiturum, 'that he would regard them in the same light as the Helvetii.'

574. qui cum. The relative stands first because it is more closely connected with the preceding sentence; qui = et ii. The Romans were fond of connecting their sentences together at points where the English would employ a demonstrative instead of a relative.

578. quo tum essent. For the subjunctive, see A. 342; H. 529. II. Note 1.1); G. 666.

580. pervenit. Note the use of the historical perfect (aorist) after postquam, instead of the pluperfect. A. 324 and a; H. 518 and Note 1; G. 563.

581. servos qui...perfugissent, 'such slaves as had,' etc.: subjunctive of characteristic. A. 320; H. 503. I; G. 633.

582. conquiruntur: i.e. obsides, servi.

conferuntur: i.e. arma.

nocte intermissâ, 'since (during the search) a night had intervened': abl. absol. in place of causal clause. See on 531.

583. Verbigēnus. See on 263.

584. perterriti ne...adficerentur. See on 420.

587. ignorari, 'be unknown' to anybody.

primâ nocte, 'in the early part of the night,' 'early in the night': to be taken with egressi. Cf. n. on 473.

589. finesque. que is explanatory, 'that is to say, the borders.'

quod ubi, etc., 'when Caesar found this out.' See on 574.

590. quorum: relative, not interrogative. The antecedent is his (dat.) governed by imperavit, the object of which is the substantive clause of purpose ut...reducerent (a command in indirect discourse). See on 36.

591. si...vellent. See on 149.

sibi purgati, 'cleared of blame in his eyes': ethical dative. A. 236; H. 389; G. 351.

592. reductos...habuit, 'when brought back he treated them as enemies': a euphemism; they were put to death, or sold as slaves.

597. quo...tolerarent: subjunctive of characteristic. A. 320. examp. 4 and a; H. 503. I; G. 633, 634. But here the clause leans to the idea of purpose; cf. A. 317. 2 and 3. examp. 5 and 6; H. 497. I; G. 632 and R.

599. facerent: why subjunctive?

ipsos: the Helvetii.

602. ne...transirent...essent: pure clause of purpose.

606. suis: those of the Aedui.

conlocarent: why subjunctive?

concessit: used absolutely, 'granted their request,' 'acquiesced.'

610. tabulae, 'tablets': applied to any flat substance used for writing. They were usually of wood covered with wax. The writing was done with a stilus, a pointed instrument, somewhat resembling a pencil in shape.

611. litteris Graecis, 'in Greek characters,' but not in the Greek language. Marseilles and other Greek settlements on the southern coast of Gaul had made the Greek alphabet familiar. The Gauls are not known to have had any alphabet of their own.

613. ratio, 'an estimate,' introduces the indirect questions that follow.

confecta erat, 'had been made out.'

615. pueri: i.e. quot pueri. Understand a predicate such as "were given in the census."

616. quarum omnium rerum, 'under all these various heads.' summa, 'the sum.'

capitum, 'persons,' 'souls.'

620. qui...possent: characteristic. See on 581.

 $\textbf{ad}\dots\textbf{milia.}~~\textbf{ad}$ is best regarded as an adverb, not influencing the construction, 'about.'

621. The grand total was 368,000; of whom, it has been estimated, 226,000 perished in this four months' campaign.

XL.1

Cum is found with the indicative or subjunctive. With the indicative it denotes simple time, with the subjunctive it denotes time and a thought, such as 'cause,' 'succession,' or 'contrast.' Cum (temporal) relating to past time is regularly followed by the subjunctive. Cum with the pluperfect subj. is a very common construction. It may be used instead of an ablative absolute.

- 1. Having conquered the enemy, Caesar returned to camp.
- ¹ The more advanced student is referred to Prof. W. G. Hale's publications on the cum-constructions (Cornell University Studies, Ithaca, N.Y.).

- After driving back the cavalry, the general ordered the soldiers to hurl their lances.
- 3. Saying this, he ordered the general to set out.
- 4. Having seized the mountain, our soldiers pitched their camp.
- Having hurled their javelins, the soldiers made an attack.
- N.B. Each of the above sentences to be translated in two ways 1. Using abl. absolute; 2. cum with pluperf. subj.
- 6. Cum tres horas pugnatum esset, nostri pedem rettulerunt.

Macmillan's Shorter Latin Course.

By A. M. COOK, M.A.

A BOOK FOR BEGINNERS IN LATIN.

With Exercises of Gradually Increasing Difficulty, and Easy Passages for Translation.

AMERICAN EDITION

Revised, and Adapted to American Schools, by James C. Eghert, Ph.D., Instructor of Latin in Columbia College.

18mo. 40 cents.

The Saturday Review says: "The book is a good one. The exercises are plentiful, and the words which they contain are such as will be useful to learners when they pass on to higher work,"

The Literary World says: "The young learner who cannot 'get on with' his Latin under so simple and gently-progressive a course as Mr. Cook has here laid down, had better be allowed to give it up altogether. The teacher's work has been greatly simplified and lessened by the omission of any advanced rules or complex examples. . . . The book seems to us admirably suited for girls' schools as well as for boys', and it is marvellously well printed and got up for the price charged."

The Glasgow Herald says: "This manual is admirably adapted to the Latin requirements of the Scotch Code for the first year. All the ground is covered, and the exercises for translation from and into Latin are numerous and judiciously arranged. The plan of the book is one by which the pupil is made to take stock of his knowledge at every step, and security is thus got for the foundation in Latin grammar being soundly laid. The book is likely to become a favorite. . . . The book is admirably simple and practical."

CAESAR.—The Helvetian War.

BY

W. WELCH, M.A., and C. G. DUFFIELD, M.A.

REVISED FOR AMERICAN SCHOOLS BY

Prof. S. G. ASHMORE, L.H.D.,

Selections from Book I. of "The Gallic War," arranged for the Use of Beginners. With Notes, Vocabulary, and Exercises.

18mo. 40 cents.

Educational News: "By far the most remarkable novelty in this book is the manner in which the text is arranged in the first twenty-nine chapters. Teachers, as a rule, find a difficulty in initiating pupils into the reading of Caesar, which is, in almost all cases, the first Latin author read after the accidence has been mastered. This difficulty has, we venture to say, been obviated in this book by each sentence having a separate line."

CAESAR.—The Invasion of Britain.

Selections from Books IV. and V. of "The Gallic War."
Adapted for the Use of Beginners. With Notes, Vocabulary, and Exercises.

18mo. 40 cents.

BY

WELCH, M.A., and C. G. DUFFIELD, M.A.

REVISED, WITH REFERENCES TO AMERICAN GRAMMARS, BY

Prof. S. G. ASHMORE, L.H.D.

The School Board Chronicle says: "Caesar's Invasion is a very useful combination of a reading book and an exercise book for beginners. It is furnished with an excellent map of Britain as known to the Romans, and with two vocabularies, — English and Latin, and Latin and English. At the beginning of each chapter is wisely given a summary of the sense; this will be found a great help to beginners. The notes are admirable, — short, to the point, and very practical."

The Saturday Review says: "The notes, which deal chiefly with simple points of syntax, are short and generally sufficient."

A COMPANION

TO

SCHOOL CLASSICS.

By JAMES GOW, M.A., Litt.D.,

Head Master of the High School, Nottingham. Late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge.

Second Edition, Revised. With Illustrations

12mo. $1.75.

"By 'school classics' I mean classics with commentaries for use in schools, and by describing the book as a 'companion' to these, I mean that it attempts to give the information which a commentator is, from the nature of his task, compelled to assume even in a young student. My aim is to place before a young student a nucleus of well-ordered knowledge, to which he is to add intelligent notes and illustrations from his daily reading."—From the Preface.

"Mr. Gow has presented a vast amount of information in a small compass; yet it is so well arranged, and so clearly stated, that, notwith-standing its condensation, it is read with ease and pleasure. Indeed, we do not know where to look for so good an account of Athenian and Roman public affairs in a form at once clear, concise, and full enough for ordinary students as Mr. Gow has here given us."—Science.

"He has made use of the most recent authorities, and the young student will find the pith of many books in the space of less than 400 pages. . . . Much of the information would be sought to no purpose in the ordinary manuals, and what is given is conveyed in its true connection."—Nation.

"Excellently planned and admirably executed. The author—for Mr. Gow is more than a compiler—has had a distinct object in view. He is a distinguished student of the classics, and he is an eminent practical teacher. With such qualifications, we turn with confidence to a reliable book."—Educational Times.
